THE LINCOLN - DOUGLAS DEBATE

It was a day, we know, which was very much like the day a hundred years before; old newspapers told us that October 7, 1858, was chill, with a sharp wind blowing in from the prairie and pulling at the bunting which hung from the speakers' platform. There might have been rain, too, a hundred years before. Whether there was or not one finds it rather hard to mind very much the rain that fell at the Centennial, for the rain blotted out new buildings, new clothes, and new people and in a very strange way brought into focus the side of an old building, the platform which stood against it, and the figures in brown and black and grey who stood on the platform and spoke old words. The rain was a good thing that day. When the wagons, and the horses, and the carriages rolled through the crowd it was somehow more than anything else the rain-made deep brown prairie mud splattered up onto the wheels which made one know for sure that what he watched HAD happened a hundred years before. Figures, shapes, people moved in and out of the rain that day almost as though they moved from past to present, and into the past again. A sign, "Free Kansas!" Another sign, "Knox College for Lincoln." And another, "Douglas, the Little Giant." Shapes, and figures, and people across a century.

The speech that was Lincoln's was not one of his greatest: at other times, and in other situations he spoke more vitally and more passionately about the issues and the ideas which concerned him. Yet, in one sentence from his speech all of the strength and the power and the poetry that was in the man comes bursting forth. "They are," he said of his enemies, "blowing out the moral lights around us." It was true, and Lincoln knew it. He gave voice the same sad thoughts many times later in his career, and very often the speeches in which the thoughts appeared were better than the one in Galesburg. Never, though, did he strike from the anvil of his spirit a sharper, clearer image of the evil which he saw than on that day in Galesburg a hundred years ago: "They are blowing out the moral lights around us." The words become all the more precious to us when we think ahead to a song of the war times, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Here the same images of fire and lights are used again, but in a very different way, for here is hope for Lincoln's people and his country, found in the words, "I have seen Him in the watch fires of a thousand circling camps." "His truth is marching on." Those words, perhaps, are the ending to the story which the Galesburg speech prefaced.

Go! Take up thy dance bid, thy Seymour-terrace-barbecue, and thy season football pass. Go! And become well-rounded.

Summer ends: Goodbye to home and mother

What does a freshman think during his first few days at Knox? The typical picture is one of a thoroughly confused person, completely at sixes and sevens with the universe of a small, liberal arts college. Still, one wonders if there is a freshman that has much time for thinking; tests, parties, picnics, midnight conversations—he scarcely has time to sit down, let alone spend time in soul searching. And this is perhaps why Orientation Week is as it is: no thoughts of Home and Mother.

Thoughts of Home and Mother may, however, steal into the dreams of the freshmen once Orientation Week is past. Still, the evils of homesickness are considerably lessened by the thousand different activities set up for new students by the always wily upperclassmen who act as their mentors, Father Confessors, and animated crying towels. Horrors like Glamour Weekend for the ladies, and rather nice things like the Freshman Variety Show seem to serve the purpose of dispelling the black spectre of life in a new world, different from everything that has come before.

Home and Mother seldom, one suspects, creeps into the thoughts of the upperclassmen who return in the Fall. Too many old friends to see again; too many parties; too many Friday afternoons downtown—no, coming back after a long summer is the best part of the year.

Homecoming

You return in the Fall, and the campus looks good, Standish Park is green and brown and gold, the cannon and the statue still stand, the library is finished at last. Soon you begin to work on the floats, the green is gone from Standish, football games take over your Saturday afternoons. And it's Homecoming, with a thousand things to do, a hundred recent alums to meet, a mum to buy for your girl, and another picnic lunch to eat beside Seymour Hall.

After a while Standish is white. Winter comes after grades and football games and after New Faces has been worn dog-eared. You've been rushed and pledged, or you've been on the other end of it, and your grades weren't as good as they might have been. But the snow is nice.

Founders' Day

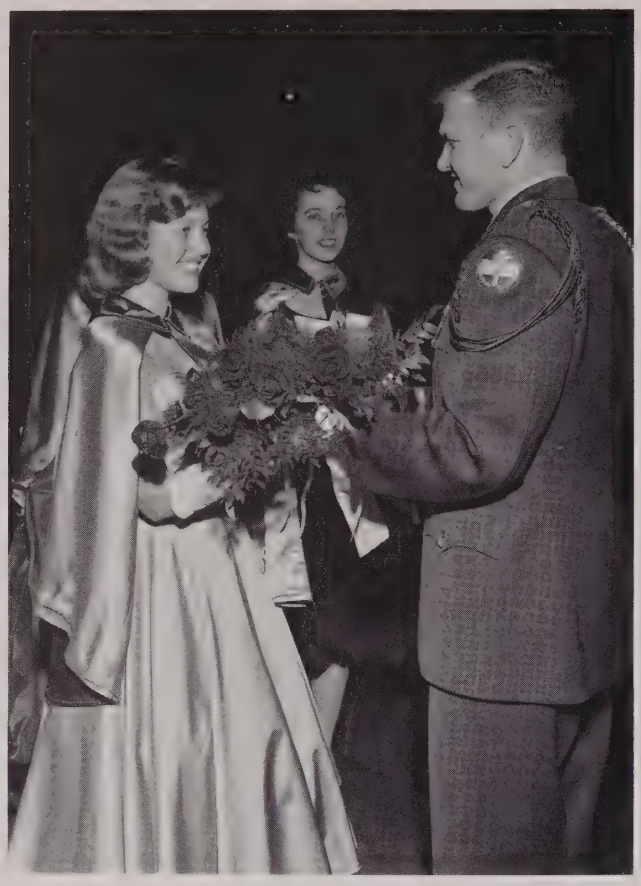

Winter can be a wonderful time at Knox. Before the snow turns to slush on Main Street, and before the January Jitters sets in—then things are nice. The parties in the Pan-Hel House are the same as they always were, but they aren't bad; and exams aren't for a while yet. Then the snow melts and the academic year careens into Founders Day. Indeed, a rather dreary period; but somehow, through all of the late Winter drizzle, you know that Spring and cars and Lake Storey will come before very long. There will be baseball, and blankets, and fancies turning . . . it is sufficient.

Saint Valentine, the patron saint of young lovers everywhere, made his presence felt even in the ivy halls of Siwash. The good saint was feted at a gala soiree in the dining room of Seymour Hall: trailing hearts and flowers, collegiate cupids danced beneath that repulsive mural, toasting Valentine, love, and Spring.

Valentine Dance

Military Ball

Capes and uniforms, lovely ladies, and the rattle of polished sabers: The Ball at the Military College of Saumur? Nay, nay—the annual Knox College ROTC Ball, complete with new brass for old, an attractive albeit shaky false ceiling, and that punch which one officer described as being compounded of equal parts pineapple juice and bore cleaner.

Career Conference

Knox students were treated to a look at the world outside the college community this year as the College held its bi-annual Career Conference. Given a beautiful day and the intriguing convocation, which featured Chester Davis, Chicago banking executive, the conference was assured of success. Dean Pillsbury headed the planning and operational aspects of the conference.

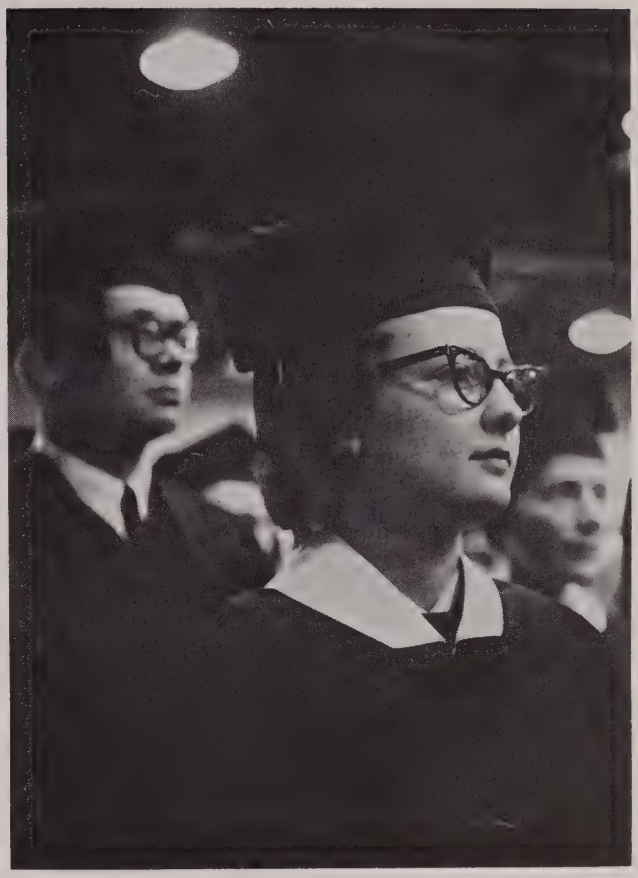

Flunk Day

Flunk Day: My heart leaps up as I behold young campus citizens screaming beneath my window at five o'clock on a late Spring morning. My heart—and my body as well—thereupon leap back into the sack until much later—when the parties start.

Graduation

Without smacking too much of Goodbye Mr. Chips, it seems only fair to say that as hard as one tries to conceal it—still, graduation is bound to be a rather bittersweet sort of time. To look for the last time on the faces of the people whom you have known so long and so well is not easy. You are not alone if you feel a bit sad; the rest of the people standing with you—about to go off to become poets or insurance executives—feel the same pleasant melancholy.

Organizations: Let us arise and go now, and go to six different meetings, all of which unhappily convene at four o'clock on the day before a test.

Organizations

Student Senate

President T. Neumiller, Secretary C. Nelson, Vice President J. Wollrab, Treasurer K. Richards.

Being a member of the "supreme student governing body of Knox College," results in many problems, like having your constituents fill our many pink and green sheets for the college bureaucracy and making sure they all print neatly.

But smiling T. Gridley ("Won't someone make a motion?") Neumiller had more serious difficulties such as diverting the Senate's attention from Eddie Fisher (in bright hues of chartreuse and mauve).

Accomplishments of the group were few, but always dramatic: Senior cars on MARCH 31, Flunk Day, Career Conference, and, oh yes, finally the New, New Union.

Social Coordination

No New-Stu-Ski-Lodge this year; just the same old Seymour lounge with jukebox, tired coffee cups and that hideous blue fireplace. Still, carnival time came, and, with it, a touch of color on Seymour terrace—this under the guiding hand of Social co-ordinator Conny Drew. Orientation week, the Knox-Monmouth dance; Ralph Flanagan at Homecoming; two victorious trips to basketball games; the Sno-Ball at the Galesburg Club and Flunk Day—all the work of the seldom lauded, but indispensable Social Coordination Committee.

Conny Drew

Honor Board: C. Dusic, R. Naus, H. Row, T. Murphy, J. Paynter, P. Kozlowski, A. Houston.

Honor Board

Any Knox bull session, if sustained, will tire of sex and professors long enough to discuss the Honor System. Backboned by the Honor Board, the Knox system abides through the storm. Tom Murphy guides the board, whose duties are mainly judicial, determining discipline for those who have the system, rather than the honor.

YWCA

In every way, service has been the key word to the YWCA's program. Working at the Carver Center, Detention Home, Day Nursery, Research Hospital and leading girl scouts were only a few of the "Y" sponsored activities. Special programs included caroling and children's parties at Christmas time.

YWCA: Front: K. Cady, C. Brown, A. Bruckner, D. Doran, J. Erenberg, G. Holter. Back: C. Witschey, J. Elifson, S. Summers, D. Janes, E. Eiszner, C. Hoffstadt, T. Verner, J. Hoar, C. Tetzlaff, P. Hope.

KAWS

KAWS council does hold regular meetings for other purposes than to issue late minutes, date jerks and campuses. They are only striving to enforce standards of general behavior for Knox women. A brighter side of KAWS was seen at the annual formal, the "Snow Flake Ball."

WHC

Guided by President Mary Lu Hudson, Whiting Hall Council spent a busy year banishing hula hoops, enforcing "quiet hours" and maintaining conduct "befitting Knox women" while they sit in the parlors.

Campus Chest: Vendors of apples, oranges, and other healthful goodies in the halls of Whiting. Not a very inspired job, as any of the maidens who work at it will gladly tell you; but worth it in the long run since the end result is money for charity.

Student Counselors

Incoming Knox freshmen were assisted again this year by a capable group of upperclass student counselors who offered guidance, advice, friendship and an occasional accommodating shoulder.

Student Counselors: Front: B. Ferg, J. Eiszner, C. Drew, E. Murray, K. Cady, K. Witschey. Back: C. McCray, H. Verner, P. Mitchell, M. Klein, L. Ables, J. Wollrab, M. Finlay, T. Neumiller.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Beta Sigma was a veritable beehive of activity this year. Teep led the group in erecting book displays in the library, preparing radio programs, and sponsoring documentary films (donation 35¢).

WKC

Knox's small group of radio men seemed to be clicking fairly well this year. WKC carried on investigations of other campus radio systems, made necessary alterations and began formal broadcasts in January—from seven till midnight seven days a week.

WKC: J. Crowfoot, R. Johnston, K. Tranbarger, D. Peltzer.

The Knox Student

J. Shroyer, J. Maxfield

Under the gentle guidance of chief editors Maxfield and Shroyer, each of the assistant editors did much to aid the cause of increased, more comprehensive coverage. Serving as Managing Editor was Jack Paynter. Suzanne Summers was News Editor and Gail Dean acted as Feature Editor. In sports, Bob Miller served capably as Editor. Doug Delong and Don Norton handled business and advertising.

Creative and critical instincts found adequate outlet in the 1958-59 version of the Knox Student. Presided over by the fearless editorial leadership of Jim Maxfiield and Jan Shroyer, the organization showed great capacity for original and stimulating work. Eager Knox citizens waited with bated breath every Friday (save before holidays and semester exams) for the latest from the official voice of Knox.

The student expanded into heretofore unexplored areas as its pages carried the wisdom of such oracles as "Gunga" and her Plagiarisms, and the infallible political opinions of Messrs. Hebert and Martin. Sports coverage increased awareness of activities on the "playing fields" as such areas as intramurals were given greater emphasis. Added to these was a consistently high level of critical coverage in other areas.

The Gale

Knox students can be happy again this year in the knowledge that the Gale staff has come through again with a magnificent chronicle of the 58-59 season at Siwash.

Fundamental aim of the Gale is to record for posterity the achievements of Knox students as they became aware of the tools which their attitudes, skills, understandings and appreciations (gained through exposure to the workings of The Knox Idea) enable them to accomplish.

Source of inspiration for tireless Gale staffers was editor Dave Poston, who was competently assisted by Copy Editor Brooks McNamara, who insured a steady flow of oh-so-clever copy to the printer's.

Acting as alter-ego to the editors was scintillating, hard-working Penny Fuller, whose never-ending efforts to organize the erratic talents of editors Poston and McNamara provided a practical brake to the grandiose schemes of these prestige-mad genii.

Artistic talent abounded this year as Peter Jackson, dean of Knox photographers, headed a sensitive, artistically aware crew of pictorial consultants. Crew-chief Jackson rallied his boys time and time again in the face of complications, such as non-artistic cooperation by Editor Poston.

Business Manager Larry Thorsen effectively discharged his duties and made possible a solid economy on which the staff could depend. Able-bodied assistant to Thorsen was Susan Davis, who provided freshmen with the impetus to solicit ads.

The Siwasher

The editorial board and the staff of the Siwasher are a varigated group of people interested in literature; some few are interested from the creative standpoint, others from the appreciative. Thus the process of selection often develops into arguments of varying degrees of intensity, during which various artistic opinions are expressed. Yet, somehow the copy is chosen, the magazine is published, and the review is awaited with bated breath.

Within the last few years, the complacent attitude of the Knox students has been reflected in the Siwasher—in the dearth of material contributed and the poor quality of much of it. The Siwasher staff conscientiously attempts to publish only what they jointly consider "the best," and lately it has been a struggle to publish even one, not to mention two, sufficiently thick magazines.

Board of Publications

Board of Publications, meeting at infrequent but important intervals, controls the life and death of Knox journalism. They are the hiring and firing element; the local Hays office, and, in some cases, and under some circumstances, a new edition of the Spanish Inquisition.

Adelphi

Adelphi, the literary organization on the Knox campus, is composed of both serious and one-shot writers and of interested spectators, some of them well-informed, who serve as critics. The club centers around a few of the campus writers, who read their works and conduct the critical discussion that follows. Operating in an atmosphere of strained informality, the Adelphi members have enjoyed a half-dozen or so "good" meetings this year.

Board of Public Relations

"I shall make you fishers of men," cried Ivan Harlan to the unsuspecting Knoxii pictured above. Shepherds, rather, they became, herding equally credulous high school seniors about the lovely Siwash campus. It must have been difficult to convince prospective students that all of Knox College is as plush as the Admissions Office.

Young Democrats

Regeneration and resurgence characterized this year's Young Democrats Club activities. The guiding hand of the Falk Foundation channeled enthusiasm for political action into worthwhile activity.

Highlights of the year were the visits of Senator Church and State Treasurer Lohman. Inspiration for participation was drawn from advisors Mr. White and Mr. Bindley.

History Club

President Gerry Larson proved himself amazingly agile at operating the projector during History Club's frequent propaganda films. The climax of the year, however, was attained as Dean Muelder related the æsthetic pleasures of academic research. The critical attitude of all well-indoctrinated little historians is well-displayed by this scholarly aggregation.

Forensics

Bull sessions have been polished a little and taken from the dorm to Mr. Torrence's office and the Common Room this year, in the name of forensics. We have heard the pros and cons of the Greek system at Knox (the Greeks still exist) and loyalty oaths; and we have heard that five Knoxites traveled to Carbondale to debate for Knox. We hope that you will concur with us that . . . well, we hope that you will concur with us.

FORENSICS CLUB

Seated: P. Burgess, P. Long, Mr. Torrence, N. McCullough, K. Calvert. Standing: G. Stagg, L. Fickenscher, J. Gusty, B. Whitsitt, L. Benham, T. Poch, D. Stiles, J. Price.

SPANISH CLUB

Spanish Club

Under president Nancy White, Spanish Club again provided a campus outlet for practical experience in foreign languages. Doc Adamec's University of Mexico slides, the annual Christmas party, carols for the faculty dinner, a spring picnic at Mr. Brown's: all ranked as favorite activities.

German Club

German Club, or Das Organization For Der Speaken und Talken About Deutschland Uber Alles, offers a sometimes welcome relief for the Knox student of German. At the meetings and parties the horrors of irregular verbs are forgotten and students learn more about the nation and the people whose language they study.

French Club

Miriam and Elna's merrie crewe held several splendidly chauvinistic meetings to hear the superiority of everything Français proclaimed by such eminent authorities as Professors Haring, Peterson, Walton and Co. Anglophobes all!

This group was prominent in leading the opposition to signing loyalty oaths to any nation except "La Belle France." N'est-ce pas?

International Club

International Club, under president Gaby Puetter, aims for closer cooperation and understanding between members of the community and Knox's foreign students. Members share their impressions and experiences with others by serving as speakers for Galesburg social and civic organizations.

Mortar Board

Reflecting their ideals of leadership, scholarship, and service, 58-59 Mortar Boards again distinguished themselves in campus life. Among major activities of the year were the Green Oaks picnic for foreign students, the sale of green bows to freshman women, and a tea for new faculty members and senior council.

Innovations under president Pat Hope included a scholarship banquet for women honor students, a program on social etiquette, a fashion show for Mother's Day weekend, and a special luncheon for newly elected Mortar Boards and their mothers.

Friars

Friars is that well-known Knox group whose main function seems to be to perpetuate itself every spring when it chooses a select group of juniors who have "distinguished themselves as undergraduates,"[1] to carry on all the traditions and dignities of Friardom(?). These in turn have the same solemn duty. Beev n'est-ce pas?

[1] The Knox Idea

Scabbard and Blade

The purpose of Scabbard and Blade, one is informed, is to recognize the achievements of outstanding military students. One hopes that this purpose stands uppermost in the minds of the pledges of this group as they walk guard about Old Main on bleak late Winter mornings.

Seated: K. Smith, B. Reiners, R. Dudas. Standing: T. Murphy, B. Grover, G. Hoopes, B. Moldal.

Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest and most famous American fraternity. Many Knox students are tempted by this ultra-selective chapter but few are really in any great danger of ever achieving membership. Members are noted for scholarship, breadth of culture and general promise, even if they are occasionally forgetful at Honors Convocation.

Pan Hellenic Council

"I guess enough people are here to start the meeting . . . " And thus (almost) every Tuesday at 5:00 (or so) ten (well, not always ten) girls met, representing the Knox affiliated women, in order to solve their common problems. The most common of common problems is rush—but except for a few communication misunderstandings" these ten stalwart maidens and advisor managed to retain at least a semblance of calm through open season on freshmen. Greek women then turned their efforts from getting to giving, and gave the funds from their auction for a foreign student scholarship.

Interfraternity Council

IFC is that organization on the Knox campus dedicated to the proposition that all fraternities are created equal. The main function of this august group is to regulate rush, that sacred autumnal rite which determines which Greek group will win the scholarship trophy in years to come. Excellently guided by the efforts of faculty advisor Mr. Bindley, the Council also manages to include in its busy schedule a Red Cross blood drive.

Alpha Delta Epsilon

Alpha Delta Epsilon, this year as in the past, reflects the increasing seriousness and awareness of the College community as a whole, emphasizing sincere interaction of individual values in an academic yet community-oriented atmosphere. Although there is no accurate measure of the fraternal attitude, we believe the existence of such an attitude can be positively identified in the creativity resulting from and existing in a fraternity which recognizes the unique value of the individual.

Individual creativity is demonstrated by the members of Alpha Delta Epsilon through their participation in the College community. Five of our members were elected to Phi Beta Kappa; ten have been awarded "K" jackets; three of the four IFC class scholars are ADE's; many are in positions of leadership in campus organizations and honoraries; our homecoming float took first prize this year; social functions have been at their best; our pledge class has demonstrated its abilities, scholastically and fraternally, while maintaining a position of respect in the College in general.

These activities are a manifestation of a strongly and consciously united fraternity, existing so, not through conformity, but because of a divergence of interests and beliefs, bonded by principles of fraternity.

Alpha Xi Delta

"We're all good sisters; each one the other's friend. . ." There are 39 good sisters this year; with the acquisition of 19 pledges the upperclassmen barely are able to retain their simple majority. Nineteen pledges have constantly baffled twenty actives with their witty imaginations, their amazing ability to get things accomplished, and the astounding number of excuses they can find for needing late permission. But twenty actives are very proud of nineteen pledges for their unbounded enthusiasm and quiet thoughtfulness. "And we'll be good sisters till all the world shall end . . ."
Who can ever forget Mr. North plus hula hoop, the purple blob, the cleverer than ever Christmas poems, having to serve on the clean-up committee at the scholarship dinner, eating tons of spaghetti cooked by the pledges, telegrams. And finally Founder's Day, the spring formal, and the picnic to end a busy, fun-filled and a very good year.
"And while we're together we'll give a rousing cheer . . ." We'll give a rousing cheer and a sincere "thank you" to our officers who have accepted graciously and well their responsibilities, and led us smoothly through a year that yielded minor crises and big triumphs; and we'll give a cheer, congratulations to our new officers.
So another year is over, but not so are the wonderful memories we'll have of "Alpha Xi Delta, good sister, the ones we love so dear."

Beta Theta Pi

Xi chapter of Beta Theta Pi, Illinois' oldest fraternity, witnessed many changes this year. Under the direction of President Blair Haines and officers Don Boggs, Jack Stallard, and Ken Hinman, the Betas initiated a new scholarship program, initiated a new rush program, pledged 19 freshmen during the year, and had, as usual, the annual "Go to Hell Party" along with several pajama and stereo parties. Mrs. Gaumer, the Betas' housemother, always fixed delicious snacks for the informal occasions.

Seven of the brothers were sporting "K" jackets from football, Boyd, Orgorzalek, Burgess, Dewey, Chulibrk, Malmberg, and Co-Captain Stallard, Faubel, Geraghty, and Pankus turned in another fine year for the roundballers. "Hoppy" and Burgess placed in the Conference swimming meet. In the Spring, golfers "Orgie" and "Hole" Dewey were burning up the links while "Hop" was running track and Bret was throwing his spitball.

The Betas were well-represented in campus affairs with Mike and Charles Thompson walking the planks of the Knox Theater. Burgess presided over the Young Republicans and was elected President of IFC. "Les" Stallard was elected to Friars and served as Treasurer of the "K" club, and "T" Geraghty was elected to Scabbard and Blade.

1959 marked the decline and fall of Bridge; it was replaced by Cribbage and Euchre with "Gab," "Spook," "Orgie," and "Fat" pegging their wins as "Lonesome" George and "Snork" looked on. Although the Senior class is small, the Betas are going to miss "Gabby," "Les," and Dave very much. However, with many improvements in the offing, next year, under the leadership of Charles Thompson, promises to be even better.

Delta Delta Delta

What a year this has been! We could sit and swap memories for hours on end. Remember, for instance, the ominous grey of the dawn the morning we arose to put Mums together . . . or our Fall Party, when we "suppressed our desires," showing up in the most Outlandish costumes . . . Homecoming, with Queen Janet and Princess Dianne . . .our float, over which we fiendishly slaved, running into a few mathematical difficulties when it came to constructing that old sphere . . . then, remember another early morning adventure, when we dragged our dear pledges out of bed to present them with paddles and Delta Week . . . our lovely Winter at Château de Panhel House.

Oh, and remember our friends, their activities, projects, and achievements. Which of us will not soon forget the seniors . . . President Louise, her stately grace . . . active Conny . . . Busy, busy Carol Jean, Jan and the YWCA . . . and another Jan and the Student . . . Cathy and her intelligence . . . Sally and her "moving" . . . Hana and her Campus Chest (organization), Fin, with her smiiiiiiiiile, Katie and her Indians . . . Ellie and her sweaters . . . yes, these are our seniors! They have left quite a spot for us "young-uns" to fill.

Pansy Breakfast, Senior Picnic, Spring Formal, and Finals . . . all behind us now. But we do have memories. . . .

Delta Zeta

Included in the ingredients for a successful 1958-59 Delta Zeta recipe were both work and play. First we add a bit of the annual twin spin fall party with its spicy touch of Mr. North turning out all the lights and Georgia Raft, our illustrious president, switching them all on again. Second, we stir in a large Homecoming float topped by a birthday cake proclaiming, "Frost 'Em Knox." Founders Day Dinner in the Garden room of the Custer is next on the list. The fourth and most important ingredient is rush and then pledges. Such flavorful items as the walk-out to Karen Parrish's home in town and the stealing of pledge paddles are included. Next, we throw in a dash of "Sho' Foolin," the winter party. A particularly tasty item was initiation day and all the new initiates. Another tasty part was the ticket selling for the all-school carnival. Last of the important items are the Mother's day breakfast and the Rose formal with a pretty rose queen.

We do mix in a few honors too: Karen Parrish, Georgia Raft, and Mary K. Hughes, Women's Day Chairmen; Phyllis Chapman, honor roll, Betsy Cliver and Janet Korman behind the theatre curtain, Georgia Raft, Panhellenic President.

Finally, our dish is finished. Place in Knox College for one year and serve it as Delta Zeta, 1958-1959.

Phi Delta Theta

This was our year of transition, featuring the move to a newer house located on campus. Fall was spent redecorating the interior; there remained only a few obstacles to otherwise gracious living: e.g., meals out until the completion of the kitchen and arrival of our new stove from Quincy, no closets, no rugs, etc.

Socially, the Phi's were prominent per usual, with a record year for pinnings and engagements, led by President Bob Baldwin, and followed by many "confirmed bachelors." We had a busy and successful year with the Bowery Party, the formals, the Orphans' Christmas Party, Community Service Day, and the Pledge Walk-Out. Knox athletics were dominated again by Phi's with five starters in football; Co-Captain Dick Olson, Lanny Kiest, Mike "Iron-Jaw" Kollen, Bob Lombardi, and Don Robinson. The Conference Champion basketball team was captained by Dick Pierson, while we were ably represented by Jim Stamos in swimming and Karl Nienhuis, and Todd Allen in wrestling. We also enjoyed a full and profitable year in I.M. sports and captured the team trophy in wrestling. Phi Delta Theta contributed its share of campus leaders with brothers engaging in many activities and filling such positions as College Marshal, Vice-President of the Senior Class, Ad Manager of the Student, and Gale editor. There were three Phi Delt Friars, Dick Olson, Dick Pierson, and Brooks McNamara. The year ended with high hopes for the coming year and a fine slate of new officers.

Sincere thanks and appreciation are expressed to our faculty advisor, Mr. Green, and especially to Aunt Crete, our house mother.

Phi Gamma Delta

With Brother Sharpe leading the Fiji porch patrol in a daring offensive verbal battle against our high school neighbors and Brother Grover leading the Fijis in an aggressive rush program, another very successful year was started for Phi Gamma Delta. Fijis will be able to look back upon "58-59" with smiles of both pride and humor. Examples can be found in Brother Neumiller despotically running the school with his iron fist, lengthy string pulls, a new pledge class, an unforgettable Walk Out in which the sophomore squad, under the steady and able guidance of Brother Frankowski, took Walk Out honors, the Orphan party, and our numerous IM awards.
Socially Phi Gamma Delta enjoyed a fine year. And what fraternity wouldn't with such successful parties as She-Gamma-Delta, the Rose Formal, the South Sea Islanders favorite orgy, the Fiji Island Party. The coming of spring and Brother Grout being taken out of circulation, found the Fijis storming the steps of Whiting Hall as many brothers sadly but obligingly gave up their beloved pins. The studious atmosphere of the "Castle on the Corner" was occasionally interrupted by an attempted political upheaval as the senior council tried to usurp power from the executive council. As the chapter gave President Dudas and officers Taylor, Graning, Row and Tetzlaf a well deserved vote of confidence, the senior council could be seen meekly retreating to one of their many caucus rooms.
Our new house mother "Mom" Heizel and cooperation from the whole chapter made this year an unforgettable one in Phi Gam history. Yes, with a new pledge class that seems capable of filling in for a senior class that has contributed much, Phi Gamma Delta has a lot to look forward to—maybe even the coveted Cheney Cup.

Phi Mu

Always we'll remember 1958-59. For this was the year of the "Ringing in a Victory" with nineteen plus two wonderful pledges and the scholarship trophy. It was also the year for a scintillating Speak-Easy party, a wild walk-out and an evening of enthusiastic entertainment with original songs, all provided by our pledges. Speaking of pledges this was also the year when we had an inspiration, week-and-half before initiation.

Who, particularly the occupants, will ever forget room 112. During rush it was continually overflowing with actives. Later it was haunted by members of the pledge class trying to talk "good old Martie" out of "just one more late permission."

There were many traditional affairs too, such as the pledge mother-daughter dinner at Harbor Lights and the Spaghetti dinners at the Pan-Hel house with two upset chefs officiating in the kitchen.

All in all Sigma chapter of Phi Mus has had a highly successful and enjoyable year guided by the firm yet always fair hand of our president, Rosemary Nauss

Pi Beta Phi

Pi Phis really showed "that good old-fashioned P-E-P" this year! School had barely begun when we helped Knox celebrate the Lincoln-Douglas Centennial by hostessing for the Centennial Ball. On stage, Chris Johnson took the lead in "Young Lincoln." One week later our Homecoming Float won the trophy and Jennice Jaekel took her place in the Queen's court. We let our arrows fling at the annual Pow Wow, but saved enough energy to give a Hallowe'en party for underprivileged children. Sixteen wonderful pledges "remembered the Pi Phi arrow" and were rightly presented to the campus at an open house held in their honor.

After the wine and blue teams challenged each other at semester finals, Barbara Fowler starred in "Othello" with Mimi Thompson and Barbara Walzer as supporting actresses. Meanwhile, "Elves and the Shoemaker" and "Hedda Gabbler" cast more Pi Phis. No wonder Phi Beta elected four of us! The pledges indignantly walked out, but returned to give a "Horrible" party with the help of two new pledges. At the close of winter we initiated our pledges, volunteered our legs, and watched Nancy Brown crowned "Queen" of the Carnival all in one day.

As spring arrived, Barbara Fowler was serving as an honorary sponsor of the Military Ball, and Chris Johnson was rehearsing for the lead in "Carousel," along with Mary Macdonald and Lois Dale. Pi Beta Phi celebrated its 101st birthday as we continued singing "If Her Heart Is True" and planned for a spring formal.

Yes, it's a year "we'll ne'er regret!"

Sigma Nu

Social achievement was the by-word for the "Snake House" this past year as was well shown through the lengthy list of activities boasted by the Brothers in Sigma Nu. Leadership responsibilities for the year were filled by Commander Rich Sokup, Lieutenant Commander Gary Duke, Recorder Hal Lander, and Treasurer Gerry Weaver.

Things started poppin' last fall with the annual hayride and formal weekend.

Next up was the Whiting Hall serenade, which was soon followed by one of the most profitable events of the year, the pledging of thirteen of Knox's finest. With scattered "lawn" and open house parties, the year moved along very quickly until the time of the winter pledge party, the Addams Affair. Ghouls, vampires and the lot of rather playful corpses leered and skeered on that memorial evening of dedication to the great god Charles Addams. Soon it was spring, and with the budding of the proverbial petunia came the startling fact that Sigma Nu men, as all others, had their hearts turned to the lighter side of campus opportunities, for over half of the chapter stood pinned or engaged.

Time passed quickly until the White Rose Formal, and soon the year was nearing its end. With the singing of "Men of Sigma Nu" at the Formal, the eyes of the brothers turned high hopes to the not-too-far fall and another successful year.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon 1958-59! Another outstanding year for the Tekes, a year that saw the brothers set the pace in athletics, scholarship, and campus activities, and one that left a lot of wonderful things to look back at.

What Teke could ever forget the Speakeasy Party . . . pledge hunting in the cemetery . . . Jim and his trophy winning jail at the Carnival . . . Intramural swimming and basketball championships . . . a terrific College of Complexes party . . . the sophomores who got so well acquainted with the police chief . . . Bob, Dennis, Dick, Frank, and their shiny new "K" jackets . . . "finessing" Coe with our Homecoming float . . . Don and his beard . . . "Santa" Tim at the Christmas party for the Carver kids . . . or Dick and his "Dabbler." Mix in fourteen pledges, rush, hayrides, a few serenades, the Whiting sport, and a Spring Formal with our folks as guests, and you have a great year for the men of the cherry and gray.

Here's to next year! May it be just as successful!

Theatre & Music

Major Productions

The theatre seems somehow to be a world apart from the rest of the college. To walk onto the stage at night and look up into the maze of the grid, to wander through the costume room with the ghosts of a hundred dead productions—there is nothing of the classroom here. Yet, from the classroom come the people: the designers, the technicians, the actors who fill the stage, and because of them the stage becomes alive. The people give what they can to the theatre, many of them asking no more reward than the chance to near a light board or a paint pot. For them this is enough. In My Three Angels, the first Knox Theatre of the year, stage and people combined a sound and charming whole; with this production one saw perhaps the most outstanding stage-community effort of the year.

Othello

B. Walzer, B. Fowler, M. Thompson

The strange, puzzling masterpiece that is Othello is by no means an easy vehicle for college players. Yet, Othello, in the hands of Knox students, received a creditable production. There were those who felt that there were shades of meaning which went unnoticed by the actors and the director, and that a certain "wholeness" was lacking in the Knox production. Nonetheless, great skill was surely in evidence in Othello: moments of high beauty could not be missed by anyone who saw it.

Carousel and Readers Theatre

Carousel! Billie, and Nettie Fowler, and Mr. Snow. March coming in like a lion, to the tune of some of the nicest music to be found in a contemporary musical comedy. There were rough spots without a doubt, but as far as musicals at Knox go, most everyone will agree that it was a real nice clambake. All of the Knox Theatre productions were not strict theatrical performances; two sets of readings were given which were nothing less than fine performances read rather than acted. Tom Neumiller's Foreign Language Readers Theatre was a beautifully handled treatment of the masterpieces of French and German drama. A second production featuring Knox authors reading their own work was sparcely attended, but surely a landmark. One can only hope student directed features such as these and Doug Brown's, Hedda Gabbler, can find an even larger place in theatre at Knox.

Theatre People

The players and their roles, the lights, the sets, the costumes—all of these in the hands of three intelligent and dedicated people. Kim Chase and Dean and Helen Currie are the backbone of everything that comes out of the center section of our pleasantly mossy Alumni Hall. Their interest is in a solid and entertaining educational theatre, and there are few who would dispute the success of their efforts.

Curtain Call

Difficult as to membership requirement and marvelously enthusiastic, Curtain Call is probably the place to look for real kindred spirits on the campus. To note the harmony and fraternity amongst the thespian honor society one need only take a look at the annual Curtain Call Flunk Day Debacle. True cooperation. . . .

SAI

Tweedledum and Tweedledee, friendly rivals down through the ages. Half of the combination at Knox is labeled with the mystic and symbolic letters SAI. Here, girl music students and music aficionados are brought together in a worthwhile sisterhood whose binding forces are a love for music and a desire to be better than Phi Beta.

Phi Beta

And then there was Tweedledee: SAI's close friends and deadly rivals who add drama to music in their interest in the performing arts. The membership scramble between the two groups seems to often be a close contest. Still some choose one, and others—we can never remember which ones—wind up wearing the little gold Pipes of Pan.

Band

Many of the older hands mourn the passing of the old marching band, and yet it is safe to say that the new "stereophonic" band at Knox is far and away better than anything we have known before. Pass by Beecher Chapel when they are rehearsing, and a wonderful Sousa-esque sound fills the air. If they no longer march—at least they play better than ever before.

Varsity Football

Despite an unimpressive 2–5–1 record, the Siwash gridders gave Knox fans many thrills in the early part of the season. After dropping a 27–0 contest to Cornell, Knox defeated Monmouth 30–12 in the annual Turkey contest. Then followed the much disputed defeat at St. Olaf, and Knox returned home to meet the title bound Coe Kohawks. In one of the most thrilling homecoming games in many years, Coe was hard pressed to rally in the final period to pull out a 22–16 decision. Next, Knox traveled to Grinnell and after trailing 12–0 at halftime, the Pioneers caught fire and gained a tie. A 20–18 victory over last place Lawrence was the final victory of the season.

As usual in Knox football circles injuries and lack of depth began to tell a sad tale for Knox football. The squad ran up against Carleton and mighty Ripon, losing by scores of 42–6 and 68–0.

Despite the unsuccessful season, it was not a season of dismal failure. The team, realizing its undermanned position, fought hard in every game and gave all it had, but found it hard to win games without material.

Next year, Coach Partin will have a good solid backfield in Bill Boyd, Jack Gorby, Gordy Stagg and Mike Morin. If some of the men absent from the freshman and varsity squads are out, Knox may have a complete reversal come next fall.

Varsity Basketball

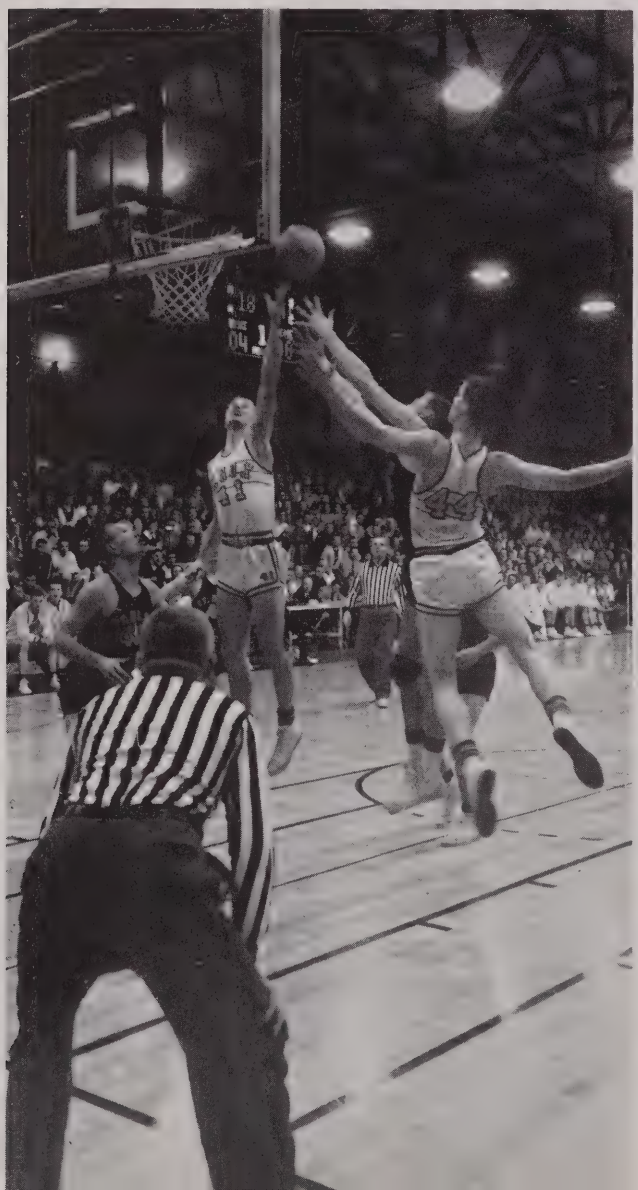

Picked by Midwest Conference coaches to repeat as Conference Champions, Coach Adams' charges met all expectations, winning the title with an impressive 15–1 loop mark. In non-conference competition the Siwashers added five more victories and two losses, finishing the season with an overall 20–3 mark, which is one of the finest records in Knox cage history.

Despite the loss of All-Conference John Liston, the Siwash attack was one of the finest the MWC has seen for a decade. It boasted speed, scoring power, and a tight defense, although the team was short on height. The team broke the school scoring mark as they tallied for the season. Also the squad earned a berth at the NCAA for the second year in a row, and bowed out to South Dakota in the regional final.

Varsity Basketball

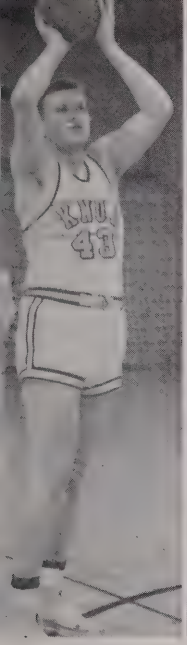

Bill Graning received 18 votes from conference coaches for first team All Conference. He also broke the school season mark with 420 points and was the first Knox hardwood man to score 400 points. Seniors Gary Hoopes and Dick Pierson, Siwash Captain, gained second team spots. Hoopes broke the Knox career scoring mark. Pierson's clutch shooting and free throws plus his playmaking ability added a great lift to the squad. Rounding out the top five, Juniors Denny Geraghty and Gordie Faubel were stellar on defense as well as offense.

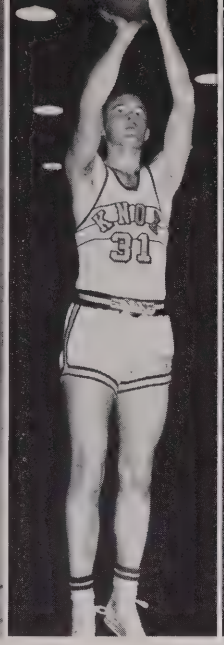

The season mark was definitely a team effort as everyone averaged 10 points or better per game, and all five won laurels in at least one game. Reserves Joe Pankus and Dan Littell were very effective in relief roles which sometimes spelled the difference between defeat and victory.

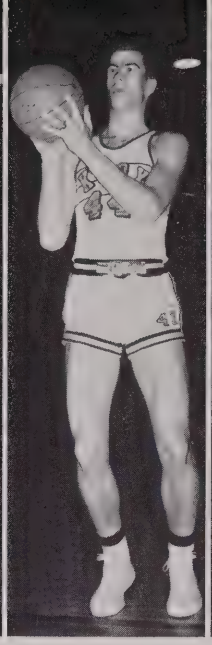

With only two losses due to graduation, Knox can look forward to another top basketball season next winter.

Baseball

Last year's diamond squad finished with a 4 win and 9 loss mark. Two of these losses were to Monmouth in a double header which excluded Knox from the Midwest Conference baseball finals. This year however, Knox may improve with addition of some sophomore talent and several carry-over letter men.

Starting lineup at the beginning of the season was Captain Ted Galovich, catcher; J. B. White, first base; Junior Brown, second base; John Stegman, shortstop; Gordy Stagg, third base; Ed Moore, left field; Todd Allen, center, and Larry Abels, right field. Pitching duties were handled by Karl Neinhuis, Dan Littell, Jerry Larsen, and Dick Pierson.

In the opener against Augustana Knox defeated the Vikings 8–0 on a three hitter. Much should be expected from Dan Littell, as he pitched five innings giving up no hits. Pierson and Neinhuis also blanked the opponents, but allowed three hits.

Track

A lack of depth, team balance and experience plagued the Knox track team this spring; hence, the over-all outlook for Coach Harold Turner was a rather gloomy one.

Several distance men did not report for spring training. Another weak spot was in the shot put and discus, as Jim Stowell graduated last June. Sporting a 4–1 dual meet record last season the Siwashers had to go some to equal that record this spring.

Returning, were lettermen Mike Morin, Gordon Faubel, Jerry Hudgens, Jim MacDonald, and Dick Bloomberg. Three sophomores helped the squad, Speedy Bill Boyd, Phil Erickson, and Al Spence.

Knox's matmen ended their skein of undefeated dual meets as they took a double defeat at the hands of St. Olaf and Carleton. However, the Siwashers picked up a third in the Midwest Conference, and were only two points behind second place Carleton. Scoring 48 points, the squad set a school record for the most number of tallies picked up in a conference meet.

Harry Row was the only conference champion produced by Knox. He defeated Nelson of Carleton in the 137 pound class. Three second place titles were added by Bill Reiners, Kent Richards, Karl Neinhuis. Todd Allen captured a third spot. With only one man graduating, Knox should remain strong and turn in as good, if not a better, season next year.

Swimming

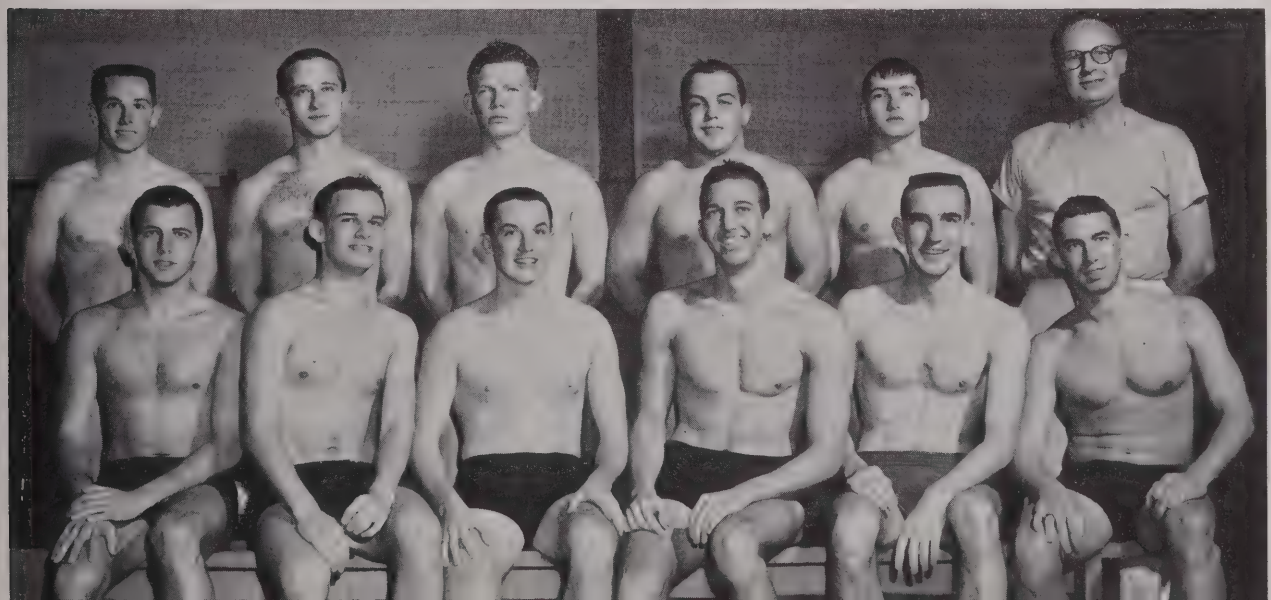

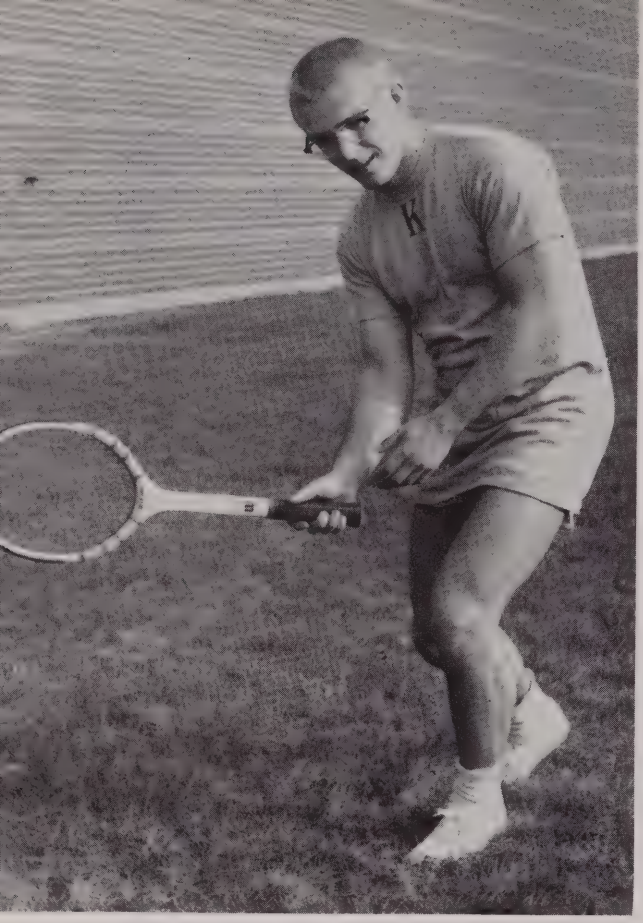

Coach Turner, D. Shanley, B. Proebsting.

As in football, the Siwash tankers were short on depth. However, this was partially made up for by the great ability of the squad. The team copped second in the Midwest Conference meet behind powerful Grinnell. This is the second straight time that Knox has been a runner up in the meet. Also for the seventh time, the swimmers won the Viking Olympics.

Bob Proebsting attended the NCAA swim meet in New York and captured sixth spot in the 200 yard butterfly which gave Knox one point in the meet and a tie for seventeenth position. Proebsting also led the Knox tankers to the second place finish in the conference, as he helped the team to two firsts and one second. He set a record in the 200 yard butterfly with 2:11:6 and helped the 400 yard relay team consisting of Dave Shanley, Bill Boyd, Jim Stamos and Proebsting to a record time of 3:31.4.

Tennis

Coach Dean Trevor was somewhat optimistic this spring, as three of the five starters for last year's racketeer squad were returning. The team felt the loss of Rick Reed and Don Pizza, but with an up and coming sophomore group to augment the veterans, Knox produced a real threat. Gary Hoopes, Harry Row, and Denny Geraghty were the three returning lettermen. The sophomores who showed great promise were Paul Gervais, Brooks LaGrua and Bill Fay. Gervais was a tremendous help to the Siwashers as he defeated Don Pizza, last year's number one man, in an intramural championship round. If the squad develops and no unforseen injuries occur, Knox should improve easily on its third place finish last year in the Midwest Conference. However, to gain a championship may take some doing as other squads boast close to the same strength as last spring.

Golf

Chuck Hurmence, Bob Bennett, and Don England formed the nucleus of this year's golf team. All three were lettermen, but the chances of their beginning another six year championship streak like the one from 1951–1957 were very dim. Coach Trevor hoped that several promising sophomores would aid the linksters. One happy note for Siwash fans however, is that all three of the returnees are juniors and may develop into championship form in their senior year.

Freshmen Sports

Hindered by a lack of men, Knox canceled both of its scheduled football contests with Monmouth. Only twelve men finished the season for Knox and this led to the controversy as to what is the future of Knox football. Because there was no action, it was impossible to determine if there will be any future stars on the frosh squad or not. Several outstanding athletes were not present due to increased academic requirements. However, possibly next year the football picture may be brightened by the addition of some of these students.

Junior Siwash basketmen looked impressive in all four games but managed to salvage only one victory. Knox defeated Monmouth in the opener, dropped a double overtime decision to Grinnell, and then dropped two to Monmouth. Kip Welzel and Jim Walker looked impressive for the Siwashers. Their height should prove quite valuable to Frank Adams next season.

Rifle Club

M/Sgt. Bauman took over coaching duties of the Knox ROTC rifle club this year. The team participated in many telegraphic and dual meets. Captained by Phil Pedley, the squad enjoyed one of its most successful seasons.

Cross-Country

Co-Captains Paul Hohe and Tad Donovan carried the brunt of the Siwash attack in the dual meet and conference meet at Chicago. Although the rest of the team turned in a respectable job, it lacked experience and was comparatively weak. One happy note for Coach Turner was that he had his largest squad in many years out for cross-country. With the graduation of Hohe and Donovan, venerable distance men for old Siwash, the cross-country will have to start from the bottom up.

Hunter Trophy

K-Club

K-Club, or as known in more intimate circles, the Knox Jocks,* again became more numerous this year as the sophomores received their first letter jackets for participation in varsity sports. The wearing of the "K" is allowed anyone winning a letter in a varsity sport. Although, technically speaking, it is not a true organization which has designated activities other than the selling of concessions during football games, the yellow and blue jackets add an air of distinction to the Knox campus.

WRA

The purpose of the Women's Recreation Association is to serve the recreational needs of all women attending Knox College. Despite the pervasive haze of cigarette smoke at the Board meetings and the nebulous quality of some of their plans, some definite advances occurred during the past year. Under the able leadership of WRA president Mary Kent, the athletic program underwent some rather realistic overhauling.

WRA

The year opened with a breakfast of blueberry pancakes; chief chefs M. Kent, C. J. Nelson and B. Byrne officiated at the griddle. Several trips to Green Oaks, both overnight and one day, were taken to the enjoyment of all participating. All of us look forward to another year of progress for women's recreation under the leadership of next year's president, Pat Johnson.

Puddles

Often one fondly remembers the famous Thunder on the Left, the Siwash ladies equestrian group of yore. But it is gone, and only its companion piece, Puddles on the Right, remain to remind us of a bygone day when female jockdom took more spectacular forms on the campus than it does in this conservative time. Still, one unanswered question remains with us: was it really Thunder on the Left and Puddles on the Right or Thunder on the Right and Puddles on the Left . . . we have a dreadful memory for things like that. . . .

Cheerleaders

What, gentle reader, can surpass the thrill of the Big Game? The roaring crowds, the bronzed players—and most of all our lovely cheerleaders. "Let us have," they sweetly enjoin us, "a hoo rah ray and a tiger for good ole Siwash."

Squeegy-Pah

1958-59 was the year of the Squeegy-Pah. The Knox Campus first became aware of this organization, unique in the history of Siwash, this fall when the Knox Choir returned from its triumphant tour of England and the Continent. Formed as the result of an inspiring story told in the ivy-covered halls of Oriel College, Oxford University, the group spread its benevolence far and wide as more and more Knoxians became aware of its underlying ideals and principles. At last count, almost two score Siwashers had been accepted into the sacred bond of Squeeg.

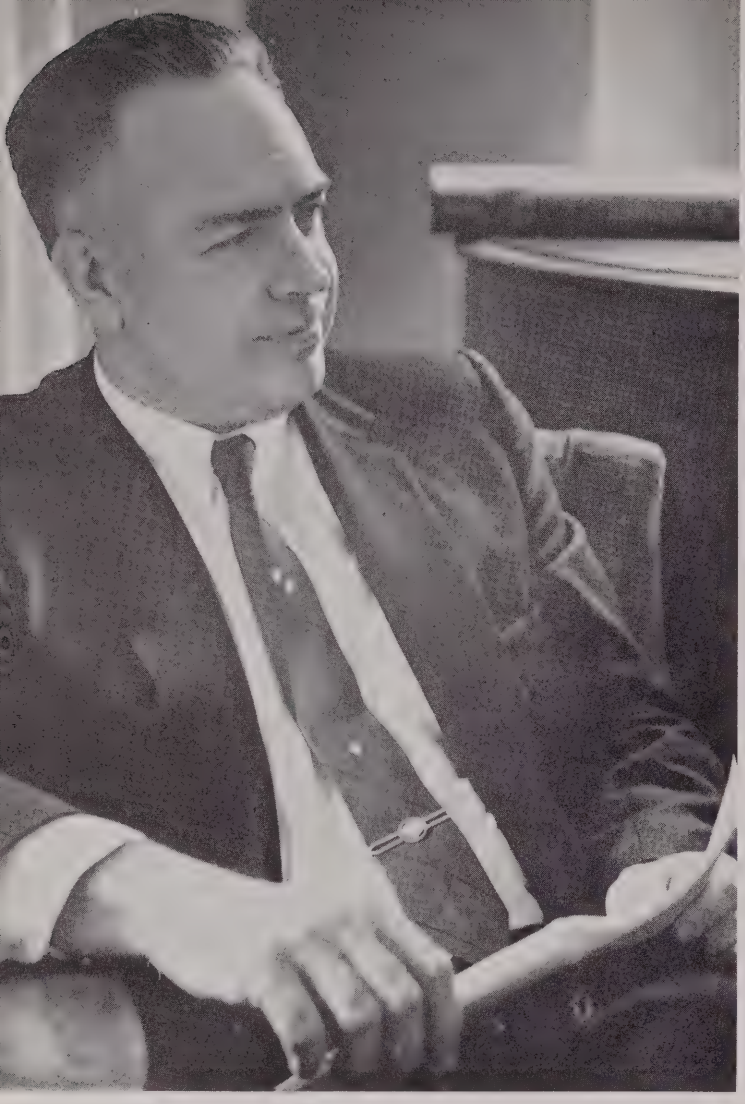

"The people, yes—on the other hand, the people, no."

Sharvy G. Umbeck, President of the College

President

Dr. Sharvy G. Umbeck is the man most responsible for what Knox College is today. It is to President Umbeck that we owe a debt for a newer and younger faculty, the building improvements on campus, the adroit leadership and gentle guidance of the administrative staff.

Some may feel that this debt has been paid by the increases of fees; however, President Umbeck's constant concern with the goal of a better Knox demonstrates the unspoken motto, "Not by tuition alone will Knox become the Harvard of the Middle West."

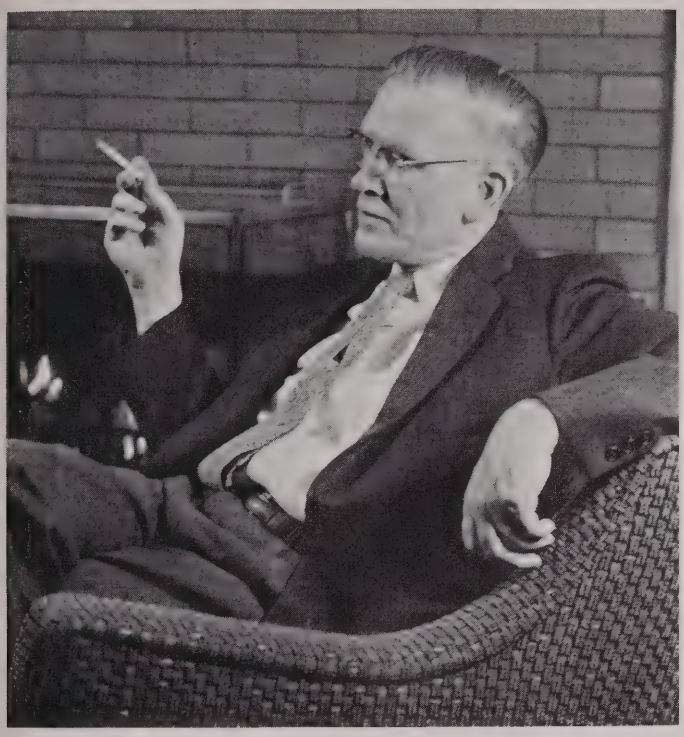

Board of Trustees

The Knox Board of Trustees exerts silent but heartily felt influence over an amazing amount of Knox life. It is this far-seeing Board of Knox lovers which determines whether Williston Hall is worth restoring and how many years parents may have to pay off college loans.

The Board of Trustees has money, power, and influence at its disposal; and a large and unselfish interest in the future of Knox and its students.

Deans of the College

Hermann Muelder, Dean of the College, is a man that commands universal respect from both faculty and students. Although his primary duties as Dean entail guidance of the faculty and academic policy, he still devotes some of his efforts to teaching.

His understudies in the Midwest Seminar know him as a man who can deliver a passionate lecture on prairie grass for a half an hour and toss off an academic decision with an easy smile and a drag off his cigarette.

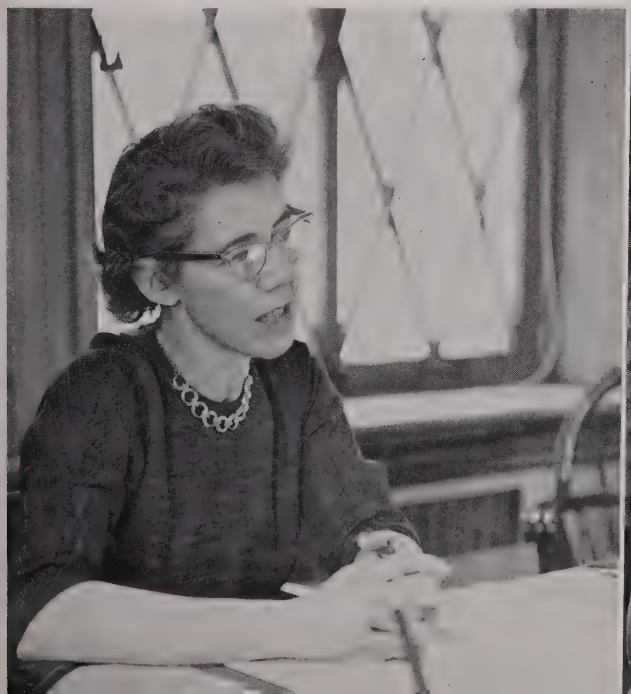

Hermann R. Muelder, Dean of the College

This year has been a period of acclimatization for Miss Deborah Wing, Knox's first full-time Dean of Women since 1955. Miss Wing feels that any changes to be made at Knox must come from the students themselves. Before she makes any suggestions (not including mentions of how Swarthmore did it), she wishes to understand the Knox Way of Life.

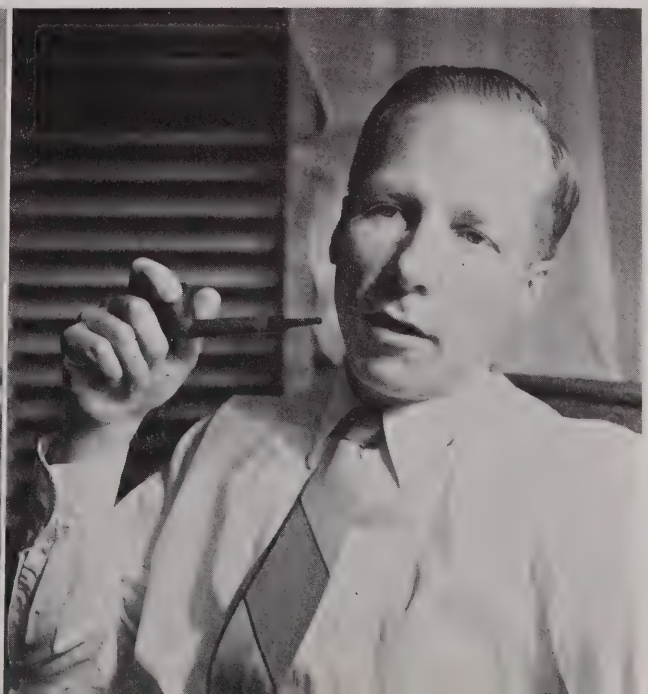

To Dean Wilbur Pillsbury belongs the thankless task of supervising the mundane affairs of the student body. Diligence and generosity have characterized his efforts throughout 1958-59, the year sans lockout.

Cars for seniors after spring vacation and a bigger and better Career Conference have been two of his most worthwhile projects.

Administrative Staff

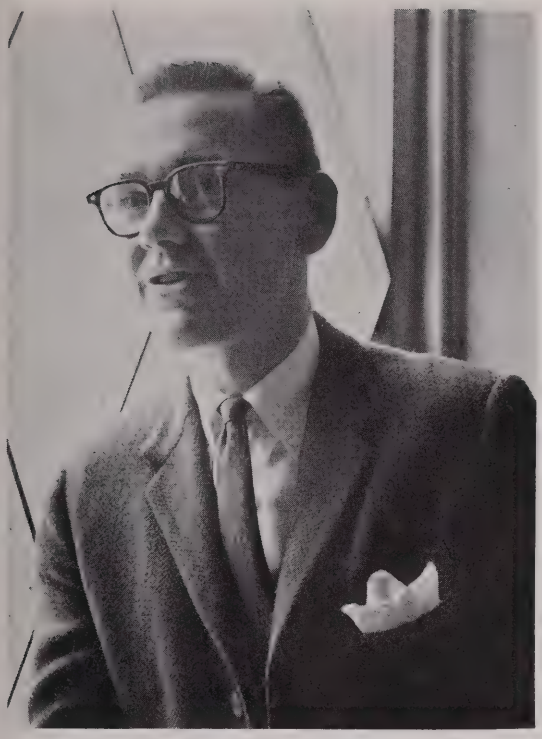

The Administration; masters of our fate and captains of our collective soul. Administrators of any sort are, because of the nature of their job, looked upon as rather awesome creatures. In the case of academic administrators, another dimension appears to be added to their personalities by the students who come in contact with them: the dean or college officer as the student knows him is not only larger than life size, but also a bit sinister for he holds the power of academic life or death over the heads of his flock. It is only when one gets a larger look at the official Elysium that he sees that it is populated not with minor gods, but rather with men and women who are where they are because of their devotion to the school and to the student.

Retiring Professor

A student could very likely go through four years at Knox and never have a woman for a professor; and this is rather a pity, for a woman of intelligence and sensitivity can teach as well as any man—and add something to a course, into the bargain, which no man could put there. Elizabeth Wilson has added something of herself to every course which she has taught at Knox; and added something to the life of every student who has ever known her—the black dresses, hair swept up into a knot at the back of her head, the frank, lucid attitude toward her subject and toward life.

Faculty

The freshman gets his first glimpse of the faculty as people rather than as professors when he wanders into the Gizmo and discovers an informal faculty group drinking coffee in the back booth. Still, it is not until he has joined one of these groups—this has been known to happen with the more courageous freshman—that he feels that he might understand just what makes the Knox faculty such an important part of Knox life.

Although the faculty groups in the Gizmo, the juniors and seniors are inclined to know a faculty member by his membership in a certain department. Among those professors whom he comes to know best, he will often find a good friend—one with whom he can talk not only of science, or English, or Art, but also of matters which concern him in the less academic areas of his life.

Seniors

As we process in our pseudo-academic gowns following Uncle Brooks and his mace down the aisle for the last time, all of us will look back over the last four years with mixed emotions. We've seen real progress made at Knox since we refused to wear the beanie. We remember when tuition was seven hundred dollars and when Pallings and the Copa were the centers of sin. We can recognize names like Uncle Del, Elmer, "Barf," John Lars Johnson (didn't he sponsor the I.F.C.?), Rae Major and Counselor Heath. And what sleepy senior eye doesn't open wide when "Variety Show" or "Curtain Call Picnic" is whispered?

Seniors

Yes, Progress! Who can deny that it's better to have the Siwasher a stone's throw from Old Main than crammed in between Beecher and the Conservatory? And everybody knows the B.V. is more congenial than Pallings or the Copa. Seniors are in the best position to applaud the tuition raise for next year, and as of this spring, we can see the wisdom of the car ban.

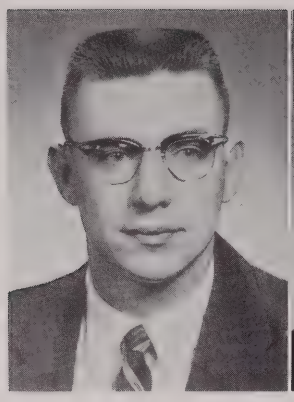

None of us would have believed four years ago that in 1959 the Knox student body would consider academics the primary goal of its college life, or that seniors would prefer A's to leads in the senior show! Progress is everywhere! There are three more park benches than in 1955, six more faculty members, and forty-three additional little green men.

What does one say about Knox Juniors? They are probably not unlike members of past Knox Junior Classes of some 120 odd years, that is, well adjusted to Knox, très blasé, and distraught about being one year away from the cruel, cruel world

One might say that the junior year is the year of opportunity for Knoxians. Since the Seniors have had their fill of campus "leadership" and ambitious underclassmen should be suppressed on principle, especially if they are talented, this lot falls on the eager heads of Juniors, who use the fruits of their unique Knox educations to exhibit their skill at "public relations" in their quests for raw power. This makes them B.M.O.C.'s and relieves the rest of the campus from the busy work involved in these "prestige" positions.

The Junior is socially skilled or should be, if the Ideals of Ye Olde Knox Idea are reached by the Junior year. They should be unless the person is so cloddish that Knox gracious living is beyond him.

By this time he has mastered the skills, understandings and appreciations which make attending an institution such as Knox College worthwhile (if this doesn't sound too idolatrous). If he hasn't, it really doesn't matter, because he's going to be idolatrous as all hell anyway!

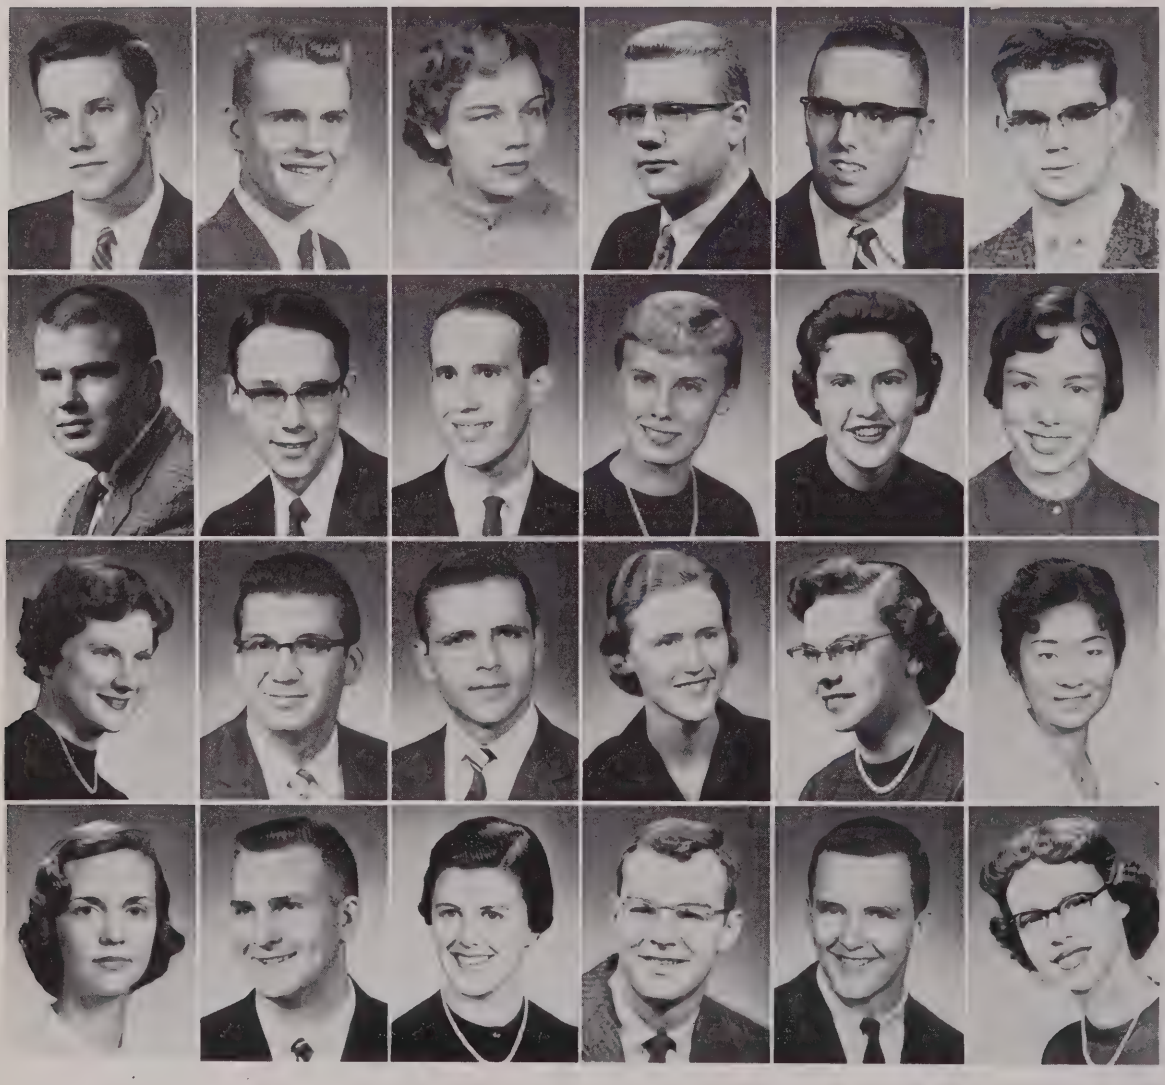

Thus our Juniors make their way to Seniorhood, a path fraught with idolatry, existential despair and a lot of fun.

In Memoriam . . .

Service to a college or university in any capacity is a worthwhile career for a man. Agreed that the rewards counted in terms of dollars and cents are far too small, and that the expenditure of time and effort can be—with a dedicated man—enormously exacting; still, there seems to be a pleasure in living and working in an academic world which easily compensates for long hours and a small salary. Perhaps one of the greatest compensations for spending one's life working with students, and for students is the knowledge that there are young people who will always remember; that there are students who will hear the name of a teacher or an administrator a dozen years after they have left college—and will have pleasant memories of the man and the things he did. It seems safe to say that no man ever graduated from a college or university without carrying with him a hundred stories about a wonderful, cranky dean, or a professor who was different, a bit odd, but whose words made particular sense. These are the rewards which a man who works for an educational institution may expect: the feeling of knowing that the job he does will have a lasting influence upon the life of student after student, year after year: with pride, and without even a touch of smugness or pomposity he may know, too, that he will always live in the memories of the young people whom he helped into maturity. Three men died at Knox within the last year, Proctor Sherwin, Charles Bumstead, and Albert Duvall—and each of them will live as long as there are colleagues and students who remember them.

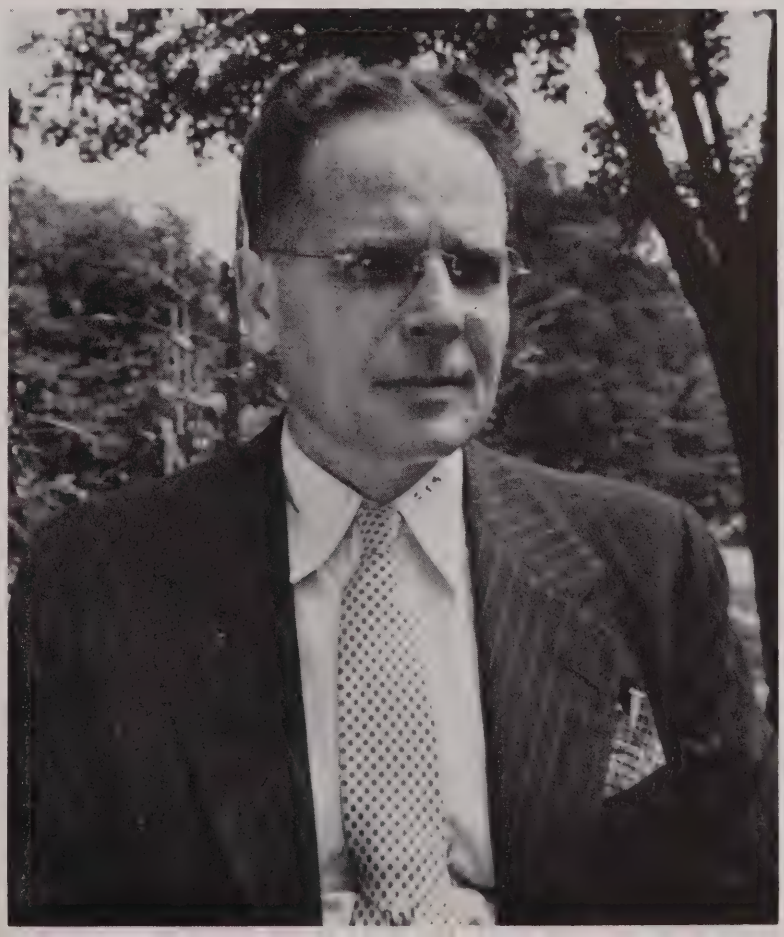

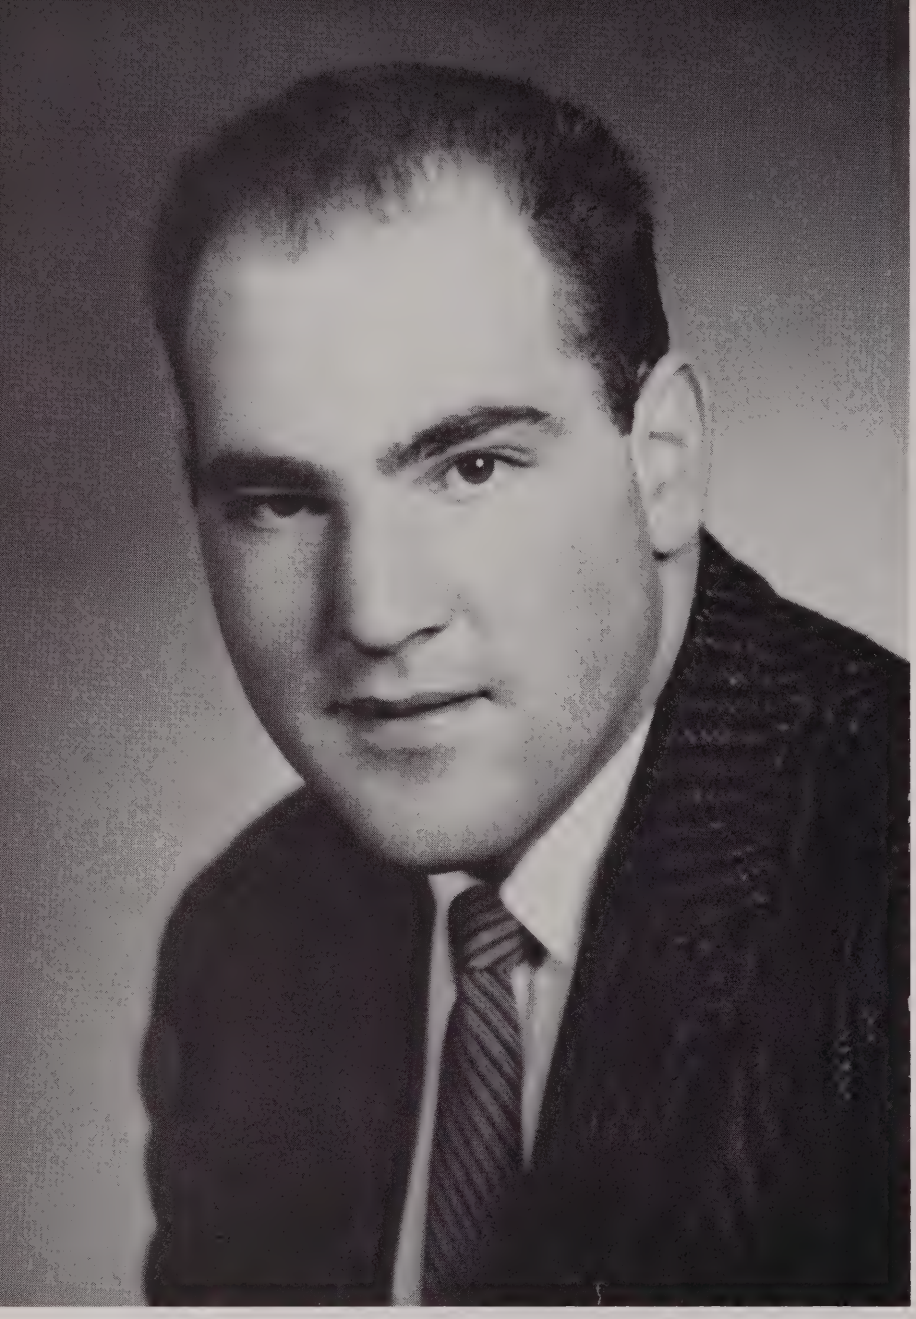

CHARLES BUMSTEAD—To all who knew him, Charles Bumstead was the ideal of teacher and man. He had the rare quality of living as he taught and teaching as he lived. Through his humility and a few well chosen words, he elevated others, at the same time subtly making them aware of their own presumption. In his pursuits he sought to discover those underlying principles of man which go beyond the range of psychology, indeed those of philosophy and theology as well.

PROCTOR SHERWIN—At knox in the middle of the Twentieth Century one seldom comes across a professor who teaches in the solid and painstaking "old fashioned manner." Proctor Sherwin taught that way; his classes were formal—as was he—and his emphasis was on the broad scope of literature, and the minutiæ, as well. The picture of an antique brown suit amply filled by a Mr. Micawber body, and the steel rimmed glasses resting above a rather sober smile; all of these things were an old fashioned teacher, and a very good one.

ALBERT DUVALL—Albert Duvall was a man whom very few of the students knew to the extent that they knew Dr. Bumstead or Mr. Sherwin. Yet, the college flag flew at half mast for Albert Duvall just as it had for the others, for he was just as much a part of Knox as any of her teachers. He knew Knox; the people, the buildings—all of the dusty classrooms in Adelphi, the secret passages in Whiting, the store rooms at the top of Old Main—all of these things belonged to Albert Duvall.
